

Description

|

For authors and graduate students whose primary language is not English, the most challenging aspect is conveying their research in a manner acceptable for publication in peer-reviewed international journals. Currently, many studies written by ESL authors are rejected by the journal editors themselves and do not even reach the stage of peer review. This presentation will provide researchers important and easy tips for correct usage of English language and grammar in academic writing.

After the presentation, the participants will have more information about the following:

- Awareness of importance of publication in international journals
- Improved understanding of the application of English grammar in academic writing
- Understanding key differences between Spanish and English grammar
- Awareness of key steps for publication in international peer-reviewed journals

Category

1. SlideShare

Date Created

2017/09/18

Author

daveishan