

Description

Do you support open science? Are you aware of the benefits of sharing your research data? The ‘Plan S’ revolution has emphasized on the significance and importance of open science. Open science ensures reproducibility and transparency of research studies. Additionally, funding bodies and institutes are increasingly mandating the disclosure of data.

In this podcast, Fiona Murphy, an experienced Open Science and Scholarly Communications expert will help you to increase your awareness about data journals and the benefits of publishing in such journals to a researcher’s career.

Here, you will learn about:

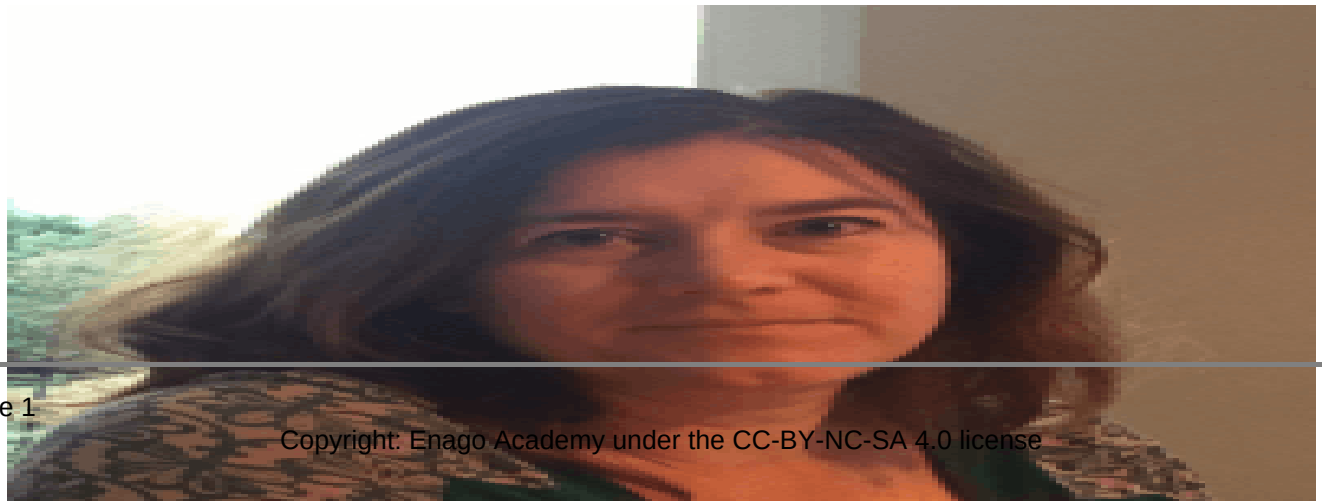

- What are data journals?
- What do data articles consist of?
- Barriers to researchers publishing in data journal
- Benefits of publishing in data journals
