Are you uncertain about your English writing skills? Do you need help to communicate your research effectively? Researchers often face challenges in publishing their work in international peer-reviewed journals due to language constraints. Getting assistance from a professionally experienced editor helps you present your data clearly and eliminate the common language and grammar errors. Through this webinar, we aim to highlight how professional editors with technical and subject-matter expertise can help ESL researchers in simplifying their publication journey.

Through this webinar, researchers will learn:

- Overview of primary challenges faced by ESL researchers in academic writing including reasons for desk-rejections
- Common examples of errors related to English language and grammar, subject matter, and writing style
- Role of professional editors in improvising manuscripts for meeting publication specifications
- How Enago can help researchers decrease the odds of journal rejection
