An Engineer with 11 years of experience in International Business.

Topic 2: Introduction to Review Articles: Writing Systematic and Narrative Reviews

Review articles significantly contribute to the progress of science by coherently presenting the existing findings on a research topic. Enago will conduct an informative webinar for researchers from the Institut Teknologi Sepuluh Nopember to address the challenges faced in review article publication. Identifying good quality, bias-free, and relevant data from the plethora of research-based evidence present in an ever-growing scientific literature database often becomes an arduous task. Review articles adopt a methodical approach to select, critically appraise, and summarize the available research findings to answer a focused scientific question and identify potential research areas.

Through this session, researchers will have a better understanding of the following:

- Overview and significance of review articles in academic publishing
- A comparative analysis of different types of literature reviews
- Tips for writing good systematic and narrative reviews
- Role of meta-analysis
- Guidelines and tools for improved reporting of a systematic review
